Slacker Radio Announces iPhone iOS 4 Personal Radio Application

Slacker Radio With Support for iOS 4 Offers Multitasking, Background Control Support and Station Caching for Listening to Music Without a Mobile or Wi-Fi Connection

SAN DIEGO, CA – June 23, 2010 – Slacker, Inc. today announced the availability of Slacker Radio with support for iOS 4 for iPhone and iPod touch*. The new application supports multitasking for listening to Slacker Radio in the background and offers convenient controls for accessing the app while performing other device functions. Slacker Radio with support for iOS 4 can be immediately downloaded for free at the iTunes App Store or by visiting www.Slacker.com from the iPhone, iPod touch or iPad web browser.

Multitasking, which is supported by Apple's iPhone 4, iPhone 3GS and iPod Touch 3rd generation can be utilized by clicking the device's "home" button while listening to Slacker Radio. The Slacker Radio app will then minimize, allowing listeners to access other iPhone and iPod functions such as email and news readers. To control the Slacker app running in the background, listeners can double click the iPhone or iPod touch "home" button and swipe the toolbar from left to right to access convenient controls to pause and skip songs.

With access to a song library that is nearly four times the size of the leading competitor, iPhone, iPad and iPod touch owners can use Slacker Radio to create their own Personal Radio stations or listen to and personalize over 120 expert-programmed genre stations. Slacker Radio gives access to artist biographies, album reviews and station fine-tuning, allowing listeners to choose between hearing newer vs. classic tracks, popular vs. fringe and more or less of their favorite songs. In addition to marking songs as favorites, listeners can also ban songs and artists to create truly personalized radio stations.

"Whether you want to create your own perfect radio station from favorite artists and songs or listen to one of our hand-crafted genre stations, Slacker Radio offers more music and more features such as station caching for an unparalleled listening experience wherever you go," said Jonathan Sasse, senior vice president of marketing at Slacker. "Our new app provides full support for the advanced features offered in Apple's iOS 4, including the ability to run in the background as well as control of the app while utilizing other features on the device."

With Slacker Radio for iPhone, iPod touch and iPad and a Slacker Radio Plus subscription, music lovers can select specific stations to cache while they are listening by simply tapping “Cache This Station” from any station page. Once stations have been selected, individual songs for the stations are automatically downloaded by selecting “Refresh Stations” from the Cached Stations link in the home screen view. During a station refresh the application will store up to thousands of songs on the device for off-line playback, allowing stations to be accessed on planes, subways and everywhere in between – with no interruptions and greatly reduced battery use. Along with the ability to store stations to the device, Slacker Radio Plus features ad-free listening, complete song lyrics, “peek ahead” artist and album previews, unlimited song skipping, unlimited song requests and more.

Free Slacker Basic Radio listeners can cache stations for up to 14 days, providing the opportunity to try the feature on their iPhone, iPad or iPod touch, risk-free.
